FP 7 Project: Anticorruption Policies Revisited: Global Trends and European Responses to the Challenge of Corruption

ANTICORRP is a large-scale research project funded by the European Commission's Seventh Framework Programme. The project started in March 2012 and will end in February 2017.

The project will identify general global trends concerning corruption and select 'over-performing' and 'under-performing' countries (in Europe and in other regions) in terms of their progress towards less corrupt governance regimes and conduct more detailed qualitative analyses of these cases.
